JOHN
 SCOOPS
 PRIZE

SENIOR vet John Martin is the latest Johnston Racing Employee of the Quarter, the award established by Mark and Deirdre to recognise dedication and excellence in performance among staff.

A native of Co. Laois in Ireland, John, 34, did his veterinary training in Dublin, and after a spell working at the Lissenhall Veterinary Hospital in Swords, Co. Dublin, after qualifying, he moved to England to work at an equine practice in Lincolnshire. He initially joined MJR at the end of 2009 as assistant to our then senior vet and now Newmarket trainer, James Tate.

After a brief spell back home in Ireland, John returned to the yard in April 2013 and is now the senior vet in our team. He lives at Friar Ings Stud where, in addition to his Johnston Racing duties, he keeps sheep on his own account.

Johnston Racing has always taken great pride in the quality of the veterinary care and facilities it provides to our owners' horses.

John maintains that tradition and has become an invaluable member of the team. He has a great rapport with owners and has a fantastic memory about the horses with whom he has come into contact over the years.

As the latest winner of the award, John will be rewarded with 200 staff points and will enjoy a day at the races with Mark, travelling in style on the Johnston Racing plane.

Thanks to the continuing generosity of our award sponsors, the renowned Wensleydale Heifer, the award-winning boutique hotel and seafood restaurant in West Witton, near Leyburn, John will also be treated to dinner for two. ■
