

SUBJECTIVIST

ALNE PARK STUD (GB)
2017 by Teofilo

Bay 2017, 16.1hh (1.64m) TEOFILO- RECKONING (DANEHILL DANCER)

SUBJECTIVIST requires no introduction, the winner of the Ascot Gold Cup in 2021, as well as the Dubai Gold Cup in 2021 and the Prix Royal Oak in 2020. He is an exceptional specimen, and a truly exciting addition to the roster.

Stud Director Grace Skelton said, 'The addition of SUBJECTIVIST to our Stallion Roster is a huge leap forward for Alne Park Stud. To stand a stallion of this calibre is an immense honour. He will stand at an introductory fee of £4000. We firmly believe that keeping this exceptional stallion in the UK is a real boost to British breeders and we hope that he will see plenty of support in his debut season.'

Mark Johnston said, 'I always say that, when placing horses, the opposition trumps all other factors. But, very rarely, you come across a horse where the opposition isn't a factor at all. Subjectivist was such a horse. In 2021, I truly believed that there wasn't a horse in the world that could beat him at two miles or more, in any ground. There is less and less need for British NH Breeders to travel to Ireland and, with the incentives on offer in the UK perhaps the Irish breeders will be thinking of coming over here!'

KP PARTNERSHIP NEWS

Viewing the horses on Partners' Days

WHILE NOVEMBER was a quiet month on the racecourse for the partnerships, there was much activity at Kingsley Park as partners descended on Middleham in force for the latest of the popular Partnership Days on November 17 and 18.

Those partners who chose to visit the stable on the Friday were certainly luckier with the weather, as there was bright winter sunshine to enjoy, while Saturday's visitors had to endure much wetter conditions.

Once again, Kingsley Park's impressive indoor school proved invaluable as partners were able to enjoy an under-cover parade both of the existing partnership horses and the new additions making up the rosters for Kingsley Park 38, Kingsley Park 39 – Gold, and Kingsley Park 40 – Ready To Run.

After the partners had assembled and enjoyed a welcome hot drink, Charlie Johnston gave a detailed and comprehensive review of how each partnership horse had performed in 2023, summarising performances, talking through issues, and, where appropriate, giving a rough idea of when partners might expect to see horses back on the track.

His father Mark then ran through the finances of each partnership, and joined Charlie in discussing some of the issues that arose from looking at the pedigrees of the horses, e.g. fashionable or unfashionable sires, the produce of older mares and thoughts about first foals.

In discussing the horses allocated to the new partnerships, it was clear Charlie and Mark were enthusiastic about their purchases. Mark spoke favourably about KP 38's Saxon Warrior colt out of Spinacre, whom he described as 'physically, a lovely horse', confessing that 'I'd have paid an awful lot more for him than I did.' Charlie was keen on KP 39's Lope De Vega colt out of Asyad. 'I think he's an absolute belter,' Charlie told his audience on Saturday morning.

Regarding KP 40, Charlie commented that Hope You Can Run might only require a small step up on his existing form to become a real 'Saturday' horse.

Once the horses exited the school, Mark and Charlie answered any questions before all repaired to the hospitality suite for an excellent buffet lunch. ■

Shares still available in the newly launched Kingsley Park partnerships

SHARES in our new partnership offers are selling well but we still have a number of places available in each of KP 38, KP 39 – Gold and KP 40 – Ready To Run. Past experience tells us that shares in the Ready To Run partnership will sell quickly. As the name implies, this partnership is designed to deliver ready-made runners who have already demonstrated their ability on the track. Last year's partnership saw Outbreak land two decent handicap wins, and take the partners to Royal Ascot and the Qatar Goodwood Festival.

KP 38 and 39 both operate on our tried and tested 'three horses to run over two seasons' basis. To date, this has proved both a popular and effective model as, in the vast majority of cases, even if a horse, or horses, picks up an injury there is still another representative to race for the partnerships.

To date in 2023, the partnerships as whole have chalked up 17 wins. Why not join the winning team now? We'd love to see you.
